

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A copy of a notice posted in the crews' quarters of German ships warning them not to buy American goods has been received by the State Department.

The notice was turned in by two members of the crew of one of the finest German liners afloat. They cautioned confidence for fear of reprisals.

A translation of the photostat notice follows:
To the Leaders of the NSBO, and the Confidence Men of the D. V.

We repeatedly notice that members of crews of German boats buy goods abroad which can be obtained equally as well and equally as cheap in Germany.

EVERY MARK EXPENDED ABROAD IS LOST TO THE NATION'S FORTUNE!

There are 7 (seven) businesses in New York and Brooklyn existing solely from the profit on sales to German boats. That such profit really is considerable is guaranteed by the proprietors of these businesses, who are thoroughly Jewish.

How many different hours at sea, how much German working power are necessary for the upkeep of these businesses!

And in Germany?

The Merchant fights hard for his existence!

There are factories still silent! There are millions of our fellow-men still unemployed!

The German seaman is guilty of a crime to his people when he covers his needs abroad.

We therefore commission our confidence men on boats to effect propaganda in the national socialist sense, and to ascertain and report everyone who buys abroad.

(Signed Reimers (signed) J. Renne "Mr. Secretary," a newspaperman asked "Honest Harold" Telen "has the Public Works Board done anything about granting a loan to the floating airplane company?"

"Well, to tell you the truth," Secretary Telen replied, "I'm still at sea on that proposition."

Fallai's attempt was characterized as one of the most dangerous and foolhardy in years.

He is serving five years to life term.

LAW REVISION RECOMMENDED

TENURE LAW CONDEMNED BY TEACHERS

OAKLAND, Oct. 21.—The closing day of the conference of city, county and district school superintendents, was practically taken up with a discussion of the "Tenure Law." The general opinion of the speakers was to the effect that teacher tenure in California was "doomed," unless the present statute is modified.

L. W. Smith, superintendent of Berkeley city schools, one of three main speakers who discussed the subject, asserted that "the tenure law has overreached itself."

"The worthy teacher ought to retain tenure," he said, "but the immoral, incompetent or unprofessional teacher should be subject to dismissal without recourse to the courts unless prejudice or unfairness on the part of the dismissing board can be shown. It is now virtually impossible to dismiss those for whom there is no place in the educational system, because of their conduct."

"Unless the statute is modified to care for this situation, teacher tenure in California will be destroyed."

Smith said that it is possible to modify the law so that all parties—the public, the teachers, boards of education and superintendents will be satisfied with its operation.

"I think the principle can be readily maintained," he said, "that from the point of view of the employed, tenure is justifiable only so long as the interests of the children are properly served. All the movements we undertake for the benefit of teachers are justified from one point of view only namely; that of the benefit of that movement upon the interests of the children."

"If tenure of position enables teachers to serve their pupils better, it is justified. Otherwise it has no justification. My own view is that tenure is thus justified."

Crash Award Is Held Up By Superior Ct.

MARTINEZ, Oct. 21.—Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie yesterday afternoon made an order deferring judgment in an appeal from a Richmond justice court decision in an automobile accident case until the Appellate court rules upon appeals in two related cases in which justice here gave death judgments.

The action at issue is one in which John Hill of Berkeley was given a verdict of $270 against Edward Peres for damages to his automobile, charging Peres with negligence.

Hill gained a jury judgment of $13,000 for the fatal injury of his wife, Johanna, in the accident and a verdict of $8,000 for the death of his daughter, Elizabeth. But when he pursued a suit for damages for personal injuries a jury held him guilty of contributory negligence and denied damages.

Cars driven by Hill and Peres collided at an intersection. A car operated by L. J. Broder struck Mrs. Hill, who had been thrown from her husband's machine.

Because of similarity of issues with the cases on appeal Judge McKenzie ordered a decision on the justice court appeal held in abeyance.

The injured were Jack Beach, a resident of a local hotel and Edward Freedom, 2368 San Pablo avenue, in Oakland. Beach is at the Hospital Richmond, under observation of physicians. Several ribs were believed to have been broken, and he may have suffered internal injuries.

Freedom was given treatment at the Hospital Richmond for slight cuts and bruises upon the face and head.

The accident happened when a car driven by Beach crashed into a trolley pole on Pullman avenue. The car was badly damaged and the pole was broken off, thus holding up street car traffic for a short time before the damages to the pole could be repaired.

According to Beach's story to police, he was driving north on the avenue when he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car. He declared that his companion, Freedom, grasped the wheel in an effort to keep from colliding with the approaching machine and his car crashed into the pole.

The injured were taken to the hospital by officers of the local police department who investigated the crash.

COTTON AREA MEDIATION PLAN FAILS

VISALIA, Oct. 21.—A group of Kern county farmers dissatisfied with state efforts to mediate the cotton strike, telegraphed Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and other federal authorities to send Edward Fitzgerald, Los Angeles conciliator for the department of labor, back into the valley.

TULARE, Oct. 21.—UP—Timothy A. Reardon, state director of industrial relations and Governor Rolph's mediator in the state cotton strike area, tonight announced a new plan for settlement after admitting that arbitration had failed.

"Arbitration has failed," he said, "because the growers refused to meet with the strikers."

He suggested that a new conciliation method be resorted to and proposed to Rolph to bring this about.

In his plan Reardon proposes that "the growers who say they are unable to pay more than 60 cents per hundredweight, go ahead and pay the 60 cent and let the government pay the difference up to the 80 cent asked by the pickers."

"The government would spend these funds by caring for the idle workers, anyway," Reardon said. "That money might just as well be used instead as the price difference."

"As it is now, any persons can say they are pickers and receive the benefits from the federal relief funds," he declared. "And some of these people are not employed in cotton fields."

The government is now paying idle single pickers 38 1/2 cents per day. Families of pickers are being allowed $5 per week.

RACE DEVILS ARE OUT FOR NEW RECORDS

OAKLAND, Oct. 21.—Next Sunday afternoon northern California sport enthusiasts will have an opportunity to see the teacher and his pupil battling for honors in the 100-mile race at the Oakland Speedway. The pupil is Rex Mays of Riverside and the teacher is "Babe" Stapp of Los Angeles.

Moreover, judging from the way this Mays boy has been driving at the Legion Ascot speedway in Los Angeles he'll be apt to give the veteran Stapp a driving lesson. And generally there are no lessons so far as "Babe" is concerned. For instance, on Memorial day he led the field of the cream of America's speed kings at Indianapolis for more than 350 miles of the 500 mile grind. With a lap on the eventual winner, Lou Meyers of South Gate, Stapp ran out of gasoline on the back stretch and by the time he got back into the running again he had engine trouble and was forced from the grind.

Nevertheless, during the time he was in the running he established a number of records which probably will stand for some time to come.

When Rex Mays showed signs of becoming a star of the Monon Trail last spring Stapp took him under his wing and showed him a few of the finer points of auto race driving. How well Rex learned his lessons will be demonstrated on the Oakland Speedway Sunday when the pair face each other for the first time in months.

Trojans Held Scoreless By Oregon State

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 21.—UP—Little Oregon State which last year was down-trodden by every Coast team except Montana broke the string of Southern California victories today when it battled the Trojans to a 0 to 0 tie.

Four times the mighty Trojans marched to scoring territory and four times Lon Stiner's Beavers held.

The Beavers played the entire 60 minutes with the original 11 men who started, and the same 11 who played last week with only one five-minute substitution.

Outstanding hero of the game was Norman "Red" Franklin, Oregon State left half, who not only carried the brunt of the Beaver offense but stopped the vaunted Trojan passing attack and kept the famous "Cotton" Warburton from unloosing any of his long runs.

And it was Franklin who finally doused all Trojan hopes when he intercepted Howard's pass on the last play of the game and returned it 15 yards to U. S. C. territory as the game ended.

The 11 Oregon State iron men were primed for the conflict and took heart in the last quarter when their band played "The Old Gray Mare, She Ain't What She Used to Be."

The Trojans felt that way, too, when their last goal line attempt failed at the five yard line when Griffith rolled off a pileup at center only to find he was half a yard short of a first down.

Little "Bee" Warburton was a constant threat in the backfield but desperate work by Beaver secondary men hauled him down when time and again it appeared he was off on another of his scintillating runs.

Two Real Rivals

THIS AFTERNOON the country's leading knights of the roaring road will battle in a 100-mile classic and five other shorter events at the Oakland Speedway. Rex Mays, is rated as one of the outstanding favorites not only to win first money but to trounce Ernie Triplett as well and to definitely cinch his lead for the 1933 Pacific Coast racing championship a title Triplett has held for the past two years. The convention program is being prepared by a committee directed by William G. Bramham, Durham, N. C., president of the association.

Tentative plans include the annual address by President Bramham and other addresses by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, National baseball commissioner, and Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis Cardinals. Their topics have not been announced.

Entertainment Plans

Elaborate plans are being made for entertainment of the magnates. They include an eight-hour golf cruise, aboard a large passenger vessel, during which the annual banquet will be served, a golf tournament for all delegates and a deep sea fishing trip.

Michigan Wins Over Ohio State In Big 10 Game

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 21.—UP—Touchdowns in the last fleeting moments of the second and fourth periods today enabled Michigan, defending champions in the Western conference, to win over Ohio State, 10 to 0, before 93,508 spectators, the largest crowd that ever saw a Big Ten football game.

Two minutes before the first half ended Bill Renner, Youngstown, O., boy, who has spent two years on the Michigan bench with injuries, plunged off Ohio State's left tackle for two yards and a touchdown.

Herman Everhardus failed to convert and Michigan led, 6-0, at half time.

Through the third period and until the last two minutes of the final period, Michigan's rock of Gibraltar defense protected this lead. Then, Ohio State started throwing passes, wildly and Charlie Bernard, 220-pound Michigan center, plucked one of Carl Cramer's desperate heaves out of the air, on Ohio's 24-yard line.

In six plays Michigan marched to its second touchdown, with Ever-

TRIPLE TREAT ON BILL TODAY AT THE FOX

Edward G. Robinson and Kay Francis are co-starring in "I Loved a Woman" which heads a triple treat program opening at the Fox theater today.

Laurel & Hardy—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in the latest two reel laugh special entitled "Busy Bodies" heads the list of entertaining subjects and comes on the triple treat program.

St. Mary's vs. U. S. C.—The great gridiron battle of St. Mary's vs. University of Southern California played at Los Angeles a short time ago, is the third big item of the triple treat program. These thrilling football scenes appear in the Fox talking news.

The story of "I Loved a Woman" which brings Robinson and Kay Francis together for the first time is a drama unlike anything that has been presented on the screen, it is stated.

"I Loved a Woman" is by the author of "Silver Dollar" David Karsner, and is adapted from his novel, "Red Meat."

This is the story of a well-meaning youth who is stirred into trying to conquer the world through his secret passion for a beautiful opera singer, and then stimulated to even greater efforts because of his hatred for her.

Genevieve Tobin is cast as the third member of the love triangle, who is content to wait a lifetime to avenge her wrongs. J. Farrell MacDonald, Henry Kolker, and Geo. Blackwood are seen in prominent roles.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—He is a well-known young man about town, an interesting conversationalist, a grand wit and a man of culture. Until recently he was very much down on his luck. Perhaps he would have starved if it hadn't been for his pal. He simply couldn't get a job, in spite of his important connections and his own impressive personality.

Then, overnight, he changed from a ragged down-on-his-luck fellow to a well-dressed man of old. He was seen frequently at first nights. He grabbed the checks in the speaker's hands and threw parties nightly. Where did the money come from so suddenly? He intimates didn't bother to solve the problem. He could pay his own way and that was enough. Why ask questions?

We found out yesterday that the name man about town had lined himself up with an easy money job. He had gone on the payroll of a New York gambling house in the capacity of "shill," or come-on guy. The fellow brings in the victims and delivers them to the slaughter. Night after night, the unmasked lurker, he would move about among the young married set of the town, making friends and ingratiating himself into their households.

Toward the close of these little parties he would rise and suggest: "Suppose we all go over to Tony's place. I know how to beat the tables. Come on, we'll all play roulette or chemin-de-fer."

They'd all hop a cab and wind up playing roulette side by side with the faithful guide, who would invariably lose money himself. Later the cashier would refund him that money and split the profits accrued from his friends.

The other night he bumped into his loyal pal, the Good Samaritan, who had taken him under his wing when he was two jumps above the gutter. The pal had just made a killing in the market. He was jubilant as a zroom. He wanted to spend his money.

"Come on," said the young man, "suppose we go over to Tony's place?"

Just a pal.

Two of a Kind

MUSIC MASTERS say her voice is like an instrument. No woman singer on the air wave can warble a love song with such a plaintive wail. When she sings a torch song the listener feels a choke in the throat. Her peculiar style of phrasing has taken her back to the heights of radio stardom.

Yet, although her name is known to millions, she is lonely within. In the evening when her songs are through, she slips quietly downstairs into her luxurious limousine and home.

She is not a beautiful girl. Her sex appeal is nil. She'd love to have a nice boy friend, a fellow to pal around with, but she realizes that her own romance will come in her dreams.

The other night an attractive little girl saw the singer pass on the street. The little girl leaned on her boy friend's arm and murmured: "Gee, how I'd love to be her."

CHAPTER XXXIII

WITH a cry, Marvel pressed both hands against her cars.

"I won't listen to you! You can't tell me I've lost my voice! I can't have lost my voice!"

He stood looking at her with a strange expression on his weathered face. Then suddenly he laughed—a dry, hard cackle.

"Stop it!" she cried. "You mustn't act like that! Then she gained control of herself and held out an appalling hand. 'Morris,' she said softly, 'we haven't joke like this. Come sit down here and I'll sing for you as I promised I would.'"

"No! No!" He shook his head vigorously. "I may be a foolish old man, but you can't fool me like that." He lifted his hand and pointed a bony finger at her. "You say you can sing. Then do it. I'm listening."

SHE sat up very straight, with her head held high. It wasn't possible that she had lost her voice. It was only necessary to be very calm. She took a deep breath and began again to try to sing.

But after the first two or three hoarse notes, she stopped in consternation. Ellenber stood near the door now, his face a picture of mockery.

"The beautiful songbird is no longer a songbird," he laughed bitterly. "I might have known your voice was too beautiful to last. It's just a memory now. Good-by, Miss Richardson."

"Morris!" she cried. "You can't go like this."

For answer, he walked slowly to her side and held out his palm. A magnificent ruby gleamed in his hand.

He said mockingly. "I brought it to you as the price of a song. See! It's a perfect pigeon's blood ruby." He held it up. "See how it catches the light. You might have earned it with one little song, one little lullaby, but now—"

He laughed crazily and, putting the jewel into his pocket, hobbled out of the room.

FOR a few minutes after he was gone, Marvel lay back, staring straight at the ceiling. Her life of ease and luxury was over. She was no longer to be the millionaire's pet songbird. Finally, she rang for her nurse.

When the woman came, she said, "I want you to send for Signor Rossi at once. He is at the Windlake cottage in East-hampton. If he is not there, find out when he will return and leave a message that I must see him at once."

"Are you sure you should, Miss Richardson?" the nurse asked professionally. "I thought I heard you trying to sing, and you mustn't do anything like that. Your throat has been rather badly injured, you know, and you might lose your voice."

Marvel reached quickly and caught the woman by the wrist. "What do you mean—might lose my voice? D. I. Doctor Leob say that?"

"He said that you must be very careful," the nurse answered, "or there was a chance you would lose your singing voice."

With a sob, Marvel sank back on the pillows. "I won't listen to you!" she cried. "Send for Signor Rossi immediately."

TO THE girl lying there in that high-ceilinged hospital room, the time seemed to drag on endlessly, though it was really only an hour later that Signor Rossi

LOCAL PAIR CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

The fiftieth, or golden wedding, anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Oliver, 2321 Wilcox avenue, was observed very quietly yesterday. Oliver is in the Weimar sanitarium and today his wife and members of their family will go visit him.

Five of the couple's seven children plan to go to the sanitarium today. They are J. C. and W. E. Oliver, of Richmond; A. L. and L. P. Oliver, of San Francisco; and Mrs. A. C. Kennedy of Plumas county. Two other daughters will be unable to make the trip.

Miss Alyce Bradshaw, Mrs. Fulton's companion on the fatal pleasure voyage, said she was certain her friend carried a large sum of money which she did not check at the purser's office for safe keeping.

The only tangible clue offered on the final moments of Mrs. Fulton's life came from Maure Somper, a passenger on the ship. He declared he heard a scream and the sound of a falling body. When he reached the inert form of the widow, he saw no one nearby.

Indications that Mrs. Fulton had a premonition of death came from Allen Edwards and B. C. Bean, Hollywood friends who flew here to aid in the investigation.

The young widow told them "if anything happens to me, you'll find everything to explain it in a trunk at my house."

Edwards and Bean said they found nothing in the trunk.

Mrs. Fulton is the widow of Donald Fulton, New York financier, who died in the east eight months ago. A 15 year old son attends a southern California night military school.

A dance in honor of the graduating students of the Richmond Union high school was held on Friday night at the school, following the football game.

Lloyd Pearson, class president, and Miss Clara McLaurin, girls' physical education instructor, were in charge of the affair.

MYSTERY IN TRAGIC END OF WOMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—(U.P.)—The mysterious death of Mrs. Lucille Fulton, 32, wealthy Hollywood widow, and formerly of New York, aboard the steamer Ruth Alexander, was investigated here tonight as friends of the woman claimed three $1000 checks and $800 in cash were missing.

Dr. Sherman Ireland, autopsy surgeon, gave an opinion Mrs. Fulton met death in an accidental fall aboard the coastwise steamer. It was admitted, however, that authorities wished to clear up many details of the death, including the alleged disappearance of the money.

Miss Alyce Bradshaw, Mrs. Fulton's companion on the fatal pleasure voyage, said she was certain her friend carried a large sum of money which she did not check at the purser's office for safe keeping.

The only tangible clue offered on the final moments of Mrs. Fulton's life came from Maure Somper, a passenger on the ship. He declared he heard a scream and the sound of a falling body. When he reached the inert form of the widow, he saw no one nearby.

Your Good HEALTH

By CLAUD N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Football Injuries Are Serious and Can Be Lessened

IN THE newspapers recently, appeared the startling statement by Dr. Martin A. Stephens, Yale coach and physician, that he could expect 30 or 40 deaths again this season due to injuries while playing football. It seems impossible that so many sturdy youngsters' lives should be snuffed out by a pure sport. Dr. Stephens points out some ways by which these injuries can be lessened. All persons interested in school athletics and parents of school athletes should read it. It coincides so completely with the feelings I have had and preached for over 30 years, that I shall use my own and not his words.

FIRST in importance is, a thorough physical examination of all candidates. Careful supervision all during the season and the most scrupulous care of all injuries, great or small. Our coaches are partly to blame, and yet I am quite sure that every coach is most conscientious in his treatment and care of the men under his authority. They are in their places to produce a winning team and sometimes they forget the human element. They lose sight of the fact that they are in charge of the lives and health of sons of some mothers and fathers whose interest is more in the boy than in the game.

I AM an ardent football fan and also a physician. I am both, in the grand stand. Personally, I played football on two large western university teams for five years forty years ago, before the advent of the 3 year rule, which is a good rule. Those were the days of the so-called rough game, flying wedge, flying tackle, mass plays. We had no head gear, no nose guards and only slightly padded suits. But we never had anyone seriously hurt. We were no stronger or better boys than these of today. Of course, most of us worked on farms, at road building, or in the woods all summer and didn't need much hardening in the fall.

A FEW years ago we had a re-nuement of our original squad after 40 years out in the world. We had no such large squads as turn out now. Out of 26 men on the team, 18 came back. Of course, most of the original squad had died. So football had not shortened their lives.

WE WERE allowed the flying tackle, but were not allowed to tackle below the knee or above the shoulder. I consider the present method of tackling now is one of the causes of so many head injuries. If a player is tackled below the knee, he is more likely to fall on the head or neck. Another thing I notice, and one which should be corrected, is that the boys do not seem to know how to fall without injury. The use of live tackling in practice would help them to learn to avoid injury. The tackling dummy has no head, or knees or arms as a ball carrier has to hit the tackler in the abdomen or chest or chest.

MORE practice tackling actual runners would teach them to avoid injuries of that kind. I have often written of the danger of any movement or exercise after an injury to the head or spine. Yet in every game you see a man on the field who has been rendered unconscious or partly so, who gets up and staggers around to his place in formation and is allowed to continue playing. Under no circumstances should a coach allow this to occur.

ANY man who is injured in his head, body, joint or spine should be removed from the game and not allowed to resume play until entirely recovered. There are always plenty of others to take his place. The coaches and not the coach should insist that the coach must remove injured players. To be sure the coach wants to win, but no sane man will pay for a permanently injured boy.

AVOID MAKE-UP WHEN TREATING DISEASED SKIN

By JACQUELINE HUNT

IF YOU have been treating your skin for acne, you must be just as fastidious and careful about your make-up for the day as you are about your nightly cleansing and special weekly or bi-weekly treatment. If you go ahead with your old habits of scrubbing, rubbing, and powdering your skin it will be irritated and the diseased condition will have little chance of showing improvement.

You must avoid the use of cosmetics as much as possible during the time you are treating your skin. Fortunately the companion to the healing acne cream that I told you about in yesterday's column—the soothing lotion—has a sediment base that makes it a good make-up base or it can be used alone since it will leave a thin film of powder on your skin. The lotion is anti-septic in action and makes a perfect barrier between your face and whatever it may meet in the way of bacteria, grime, wind or sun.

If you go to business every day and feel that your face needs more ornamentation, then you may use just a little powder and rouge, but use the lotion first. Then apply very lightly with a clean piece of cotton a little powder and rouge, but use the lotion first. Then apply very lightly with a clean piece of cotton a little powder and rouge, but use the lotion first. Then apply very lightly with a clean piece of cotton a little powder and rouge, but use the lotion first.

And don't add more powder or more rouge without cleansing your skin thoroughly and starting anew with a fresh application of lotion. Applying fresh make-up over old clogs the pores and makes the effort of the day's cleansing more difficult. And it irritates the skin! This bit of advice applies to everyone of you whether your skin is clear and unblemished or whether you are bothered with blemishes.

Occasionally — although it is an exception — one finds a dry, scaly skin that is afflicted with acne. In general it needs the same care as the oily skin. Under the diseased condition is cleared up, then it can be treated for softening and refining the texture. It will look better during the day if you use a light vanishing cream before dusting on your powder. The cream must be patted lightly on the skin so that any massage of the pimples area is avoided.

And let me repeat what I've told you about the matter of diet. You must be firm about that matter if you expect permanent improvement. Eat well balanced meals including a lot of fruits and vegetables, both raw and cooked. Drink lots of orange and lemon and grapefruit juice and avoid constipation at all costs. Usually a diet including lots of fruits and vegetables is sufficient to correct such a condition if it isn't ask your doctor for advice. Avoid starchy foods, candy, sodas, sundaes, thickened gravies and sauces and avoid stimulants like alcohol, tea, coffee, or spiced dishes.

Get as much daily exercise as possible to tone your system and take a warm soapy bath every day, scrubbing vigorously with a bath brush to arouse the circulation in your skin. If, at this late date, you can have ambaths either natural or artificial, ones, then do. Nothing is so healing and toning to your whole body as the ultra-violet rays of sunshine or from the sun lamp.

As I've already told you, your skin must be kept perfectly clean. Never fail to wash it at night with soap and water and again in the morning. The morning scrub should also be with soap and water unless your skin is dry and scaly, when a rinse with tepid water is sufficient. Apply your protective healing lotion and make-up if you must. Good luck with your treatment!

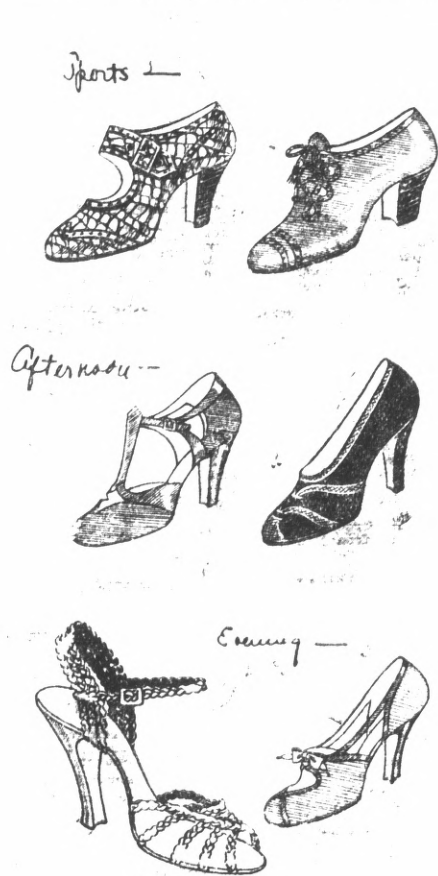

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "Why do we throw rice at weddings? I have often wondered about this custom.—L. C."

ANSWER: The custom of showering a newly married couple with rice symbolizes a wish for fruitfulness. Rice and grain signified productivity among early peoples.

HARDY MEALS FOR OCTOBER

By JUDITH WILSON

OCTOBER with its great, golden pumpkins, hearty red and white cabbages, luscious grapes, rosy apples, cider and cranberries suggest all kinds of hearty, comforting meals that will be appealing to appetites whetted by brisk winds and frosty weather. Use all kinds of available fruit freely as appetizers, accompaniments to the meat course and in salads, but use such homey dishes as corned beef and cabbage or salt pork served country style with cream gravy and a big dish of meaty baked potatoes. "Common" food but it has delighted many an epicure.

Since we've had a holiday from rich cakes and pies for a while, surprise your family with a spicy, big pumpkin pie or with rich, fruity little cakes for dessert. If the cakes I wish to tell you about first, but if there is space I do want to tell you about preparing salt pork. If you have never tried it.

Mystery Cake
The mystery cakes in the first menu are moist, finely flavored little cakes that everyone will like. Cream one cup of sugar, one egg and one cup of sugar until light. Add two eggs, one at a time, and beat vigorously after each addition. Then add a half cup of melted butter, a half cup of milk and a half cup of flour. Bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. Cover with a butter frosting flavored with grated lemon rind and juice. This makes fourteen little cakes.

Salt Pork
Now for the salt pork recipe. Have the butcher cut the salt pork into slices a little less than a quarter of an inch thick. Cook it with water enough to cover your frying pan until the water has nearly boiled away. Then take out the pieces of pork and dip them into flour. Return to the pan and fry until the pork is golden brown and crisp on each side, then arrange on a hot platter.

Stir a tablespoon of flour into the fat remaining in the pan, stir until blended and light brown, then add one cup of milk, a little sweet cream and enough pepper to season. Stir until smooth and thick, then pour over the fried pork. Baked apples, apple sauce, or fried apples go well with this dish, and for breakfast you might try it with a stack of buckwheat cakes!

Tomato Honey
Tomato honey is made from ripe tomatoes and makes a delicious syrup for hot breads. Cut ripe tomatoes into small pieces

Home-Making

Cake batter will keep if properly stored in a cold place. Get it ready as if for the oven, pouring it into the baking pan. Then cover it with a damp cloth and store it in the refrigerator. Fasten both coverings down securely with cord and store in refrigerator. The next day, or whenever the homemaker is ready to bake, she removes the batter from cold storage and gets her oven started.

Use confectioner's sugar or icing sugar for uncooked icings and fillings.

That raw taste in uncooked icings is overcome if they are allowed to remain over hot water for about twenty minutes.

When in doubt about the meal, thank heaven for eggs! There's always the omelet—cheese, Spanish, vegetable or onion—around which to build.

PROFILES For Today

By TALBOT LAKE

Ambassador Eberhardt Quits . . . A Marquise From Georgia

AFTER thirty years in the diplomatic service, Charles C. Eberhardt, United States Minister to Costa Rica, for the past year and one-half years, announces he will retire. And so, at 62, Mr. Eberhardt seeks a well-earned rest, for his has been a very busy life.

Thoroughness was and is one of the greatest assets this Kansan possesses. When he was graduated by the Kansas Wesleyan University in 1891, after absorbing all the knowledge this institution of learning could give him, he became a lumber merchant in Salina. In the short space of two years, he sold so much lumber that a large New England insurance company called him from Salina, Kan., to Springfield, Mass., to sell policies.

Young Eberhardt signed so many policies in Springfield that the company sent him back to Kansas as their special agent. When he had signed up a greater part of the residents of the state he was induced to go to Mexico by a large oil company, to care for its gushing wells. In 1904, the Federal government, having heard of his great ability as a business man, invited him to enter the office of the United States Consulate in Mexico.

From that time on Mr. Eberhardt has traveled thousands of miles to all parts of the world in the service of his government.

He became a veritable fixer. From Mexico he was promoted to be a Consul to Iquitos, Peru, which is the Atlantic port of this South American republic. He was next transferred to Barranquilla, the principal port in Colombia, and here he made such a good reputation that the State Department named him Consul General at Large to inspect and improve consulates in all parts of the world. For fourteen years he aided the government in this capacity. In 1925, in view of the most delicate and difficult situation in Nicaragua, he was appointed United States Minister, and no one, not even former Secretary of State Stimson, did more than he to evolve peace out of chaos there.

IN a palatial residence on the Boulevard des Capucines in Paris, a very old lady sits beneath a Confederate flag and contemplates the story of her life, which is an enchanting fairy tale involving the nobility of Europe. She is the Marquise of Anglessey, the former Minna King, daughter of John Pendleton King, once a senator from Georgia.

Although a long way from Georgia, and a resident of the Continent for many years, the Marquise still thinks of America's Southland as her country. The thought she has not crossed the Atlantic since it took thirty days to make the journey. "The Yankees, she still believes, are still, and ever will be, foreigners to her."

As the wife of Henry William Paget, who was made Marquis of Anglessey for his splendid work as commander of the British cavalry at the Battle of Waterloo, where he lost a leg, she gained the reputation of being the most beautiful lady of the British court, as well as one of the great beauties of her day in all of Europe. The former Minna King was an intimate friend of Queen Victoria, a frequent guest of the imperial family of Russia, and for the past sixty years her famous drawing room receptions have been the talk of European aristocratic circles.

Until four years ago, the Marquise had the habit of holding the most distinguished of the French salons, where the great of the land gathered. She fell and broke her hip, and now, wearing her 100th birthday, she sits and dreams of the days when she was queen of all she surveyed.

With plenty of money always at her disposal, the Marquise enjoyed as a hobby, in her heyday, the purchase of famous European castles. These she would furnish completely in the style that befitted and then sell them for a "song." One such mansion in France she sold to a hairdresser for $15,000, who in turn sold it to James Hazen Hyde, the American capitalist, for a song.

Salt Water Stains

On vacations one often ruins one's shoes with the extremely ugly marks made by salt water. The only really effective way of removing them from brown shoes is to dissolve a small lump of ordinary washing soda in two tablespoons of hot water and dab it round the stains. Allow it to dry thoroughly, and then repeat the process. When the second coat has dried on, clean the shoes with polish and the stains will have disappeared.

For black shoes, rub the marks with a paste made of black lead and lemon juice. Leave for one hour, and then allow to dry off, and polish.

JUDGE ADVISES MARRIED FOLKS ABOUT DUTIES

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

EVEN a judge of the Court of Domestic Relations must have his little joke. How else is one to interpret the code drafted by Judge Hartman of the above-said court of St. Louis, who says:

"The wife should arise holds-up hour may least one hour before the husband and have his pipe lit and her morning paper at hand for him."

"Except on Sunday, is entitled to a hot, substantial dinner each night."

"After giving 10 per cent of his salary to his wife for personal expenses, and paying the household bills, the husband is entitled to the balance—if any."

TAKE it seriously if you like, but not to the extent of lighting the pipe. It most emphatically would not be the pipe of peace, besides which it might bring on not only a breakfast table squabble, but a fit of nausea besides. Pipes that are as sweet as a nut to a man's taste might be wormwood and gall to a woman's. Besides all husbands do not smoke pipes before breakfast.

AS FOR the rest of paragraph one, it has the rudiments of common sense and is about what occurs in most maidless households—an hour may be a bit of peace, besides which it might bring on not only a breakfast table squabble, but a fit of nausea besides. Pipes that are as sweet as a nut to a man's taste might be wormwood and gall to a woman's. Besides all husbands do not smoke pipes before breakfast.

PARAGRAPH two we can afford to let stand. Wives have no business to serve their men cold vitals, unless by mutual consent, because of the torrid weather or some emergency. AS FOR paragraph three, most wives, it seems to me, would be only too glad to agree to such a distribution of the family funds. Not all wives have 12 per cent of a husband's salary for themselves. The usual system to hand over part of his salary for household expenses and that, in his mind, includes the money his wife spends for herself. This system is the cause of women hating their husbands. It is a difference in the price of groceries and of petty economies of a like nature. It is only by squeezing a dollar until the curls scream that she is able to salvage enough money for an occasional matinee ticket.

NOT being a financier, my opinion or advice on how to manage the family bank role, is practically nil—I do state and state emphatically however, that to place either one of the parties in a position where she is hauled up on the carpet and made to give a detail account of his or her expenditures, is a most unfair and humiliating experience. I am all for some working basis agreed on from the start.

IT DOES seem as though each of little family must work it out for themselves although on how to sure there are economists who could make a much better job of it for them. It also seems to me a grand joke on the men, to make them pay over two-thirds of the household bills. Only by so doing can they possibly get the faintest idea of "where all the money goes."

MOST men, and who can blame them, positively refuse to be annoyed by domestic details. They much prefer to fork over a stated sum on pay day and let it go at that.

MEN normally spend more money day by day for "incidentals" than do women. They go in lavishly for shaves and cigars and tips and are nothing like as close-fisted in small things as women. They are inclined to need more carfare and bigger sums for lunch money, and they are always being placed in the position of treating or having to take the check.

EVEN women who go to business are not as spendthrift by a long shot as men, consequently a man who kept only 10 per cent of his salary for pocket money would probably feel very much down-trodden. A woman who had 10 per cent of her husband's salary to "blow in" would feel as prosperous as the little Eagle himself.

THOUSANDS OF FARMERS IN WALKOUT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—UP—Rapid fire developments today emphasized the desperate plight of the American farmer and hastened the government's vast campaign to lift him from one of history's worst depressions.

Action, demands, legislation, investigations and manifestos came with machine gun rapidity, while the nation awaited President Roosevelt's heart-to-heart talk with the people tomorrow night concerning the multitudes of problems which face them.

The developments included:

1. At noon many thousands of farmers in 27 states—so many that even the leaders in Des Moines, Iowa, refused to estimate their number—were called on to strike. They were pledged not to sell corn, wheat, hogs, or any other farm product until prices reach the cost of production. They were pledged further to buy no more dresses at the general store, no more gasoline, nothing but absolute necessities until their objectives are reached.

2. Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday association, said the farmers were striking because "every pledge that has been made to them has been violated, every promise that he has been made to them has been violated, every promise broken."

3. Senator George Norris, the Nebraska progressive sent a telegram from McCook, Neb., to the weekly publication "Labor," demanding again that the President hasten actual inflation by retiring $1,500,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds with printing less money, rather than by refunding them.

4. General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, wrote Keith Neville, chairman in Nebraska, telling him that the blue eagle cannot be blamed for slowness in the farm relief or public works programs. He said that N. R. A. was only a part of the President's recovery program, but that he believed the agriculture and public works plans were under administration of "able, honest, vigorous and devoted men—crusaders in a common cause."

5. Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, endorsed the farm strike with the warning that he approved only so long as the strikers remained within the bounds of order.

6. Governor Langer of North Dakota, who called an embargo on wheat from his state, criticized large purchases of foreign grown rye. The bureau of agricultural economics reported that whiskey distillers are buying rye abroad because the domestic crop this year is only half normal.

STANFORD IN VICTORY OVER U. S. F. ELEVEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Scoring a touchdown in the last minute and a half of play, Stanford university today defeated the University of San Francisco Dons by a score of 20 to 13.

In the last quarter, the score stood even up, with both teams having 13 points.

With less than 30 seconds to play, Stanford had the ball on the Dons' 20-yard line. Then came the play that won the game. Hillman took the ball from center and checked it to Reiser, sleek substitute halfback. It looked like a pass that only meant a few yards. Then, suddenly, Reiser turned and shot a lateral pass to Monk Moscrip who tromped 20 yards for the winning touchdown. Moscrip then kicked the extra point.

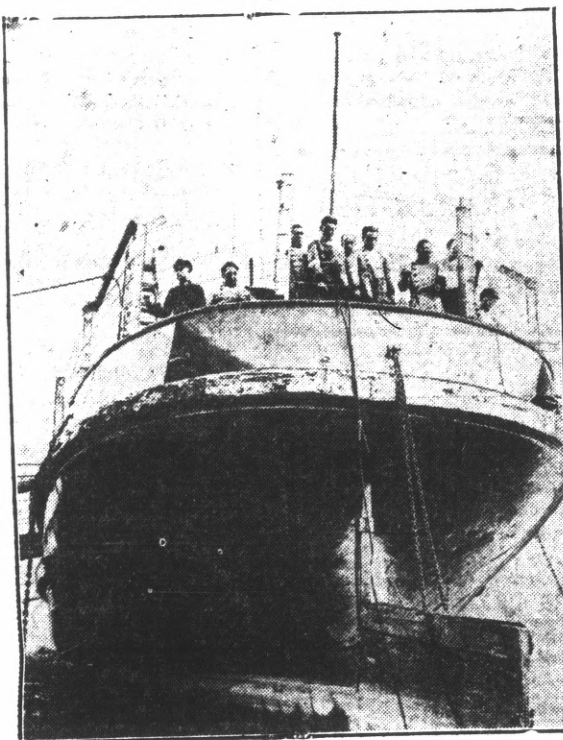

Stanford opened the scoring in the first quarter when Bob Grayson threw a 20 yard pass to Moscrip, who was the first to score the first touchdown. Moscrip converted.

The Dons scored their first touchdown—the first to be made against the Cards this season—in the second quarter when Sims fumbled and Barber recovered to run 25 yards for the goal. Blewett recovered.

The Dons scored their second touchdown in the third quarter when Condray broke through and raced 81 yards for a touchdown. Gonzales failed to convert.

Shortly after, Stanford scored the tying touchdown on a power play and then, as related above, scored the winning points.

NRA Attack Made By Senator Reed

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—UP—United States Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania announced opposition to the NRA, the return of pre-prohibition forms of liquor control, and the direct primary. In a speech and interviews here, the NRA, he said, has been the cause of the epidemic of labor troubles sweeping the country, although "the NRA has helped eliminate sweat shops and has done away with child labor."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute. See a drug store. © 1931 C. M. Co. Made in U.S.A.

Decrease In Gas Receipts In September

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 21.—California collected $3,319,002, in gasoline taxes during September, Fred E. Stewart, member of the State Board of Equalization, announced today.

The revenue was a decrease of 3.7 per cent over gasoline tax collections for September of last year. A taxable total of 111,750,336 gallons was distributed in California last month.

The Board report showed both the taxable gallonage of the oil companies and the total gallonage actually sold by these companies. "This total gallonage would include the net taxable gallonage," Stewart said, "plus such non-taxable sales as exports, direct sales to the Federal government, resale of gasoline purchased from one company by another, upon which the tax was paid by the first company, and other similar items."

Insull Erred Says Lawyer for Defense

ATHENS, Oct. 21.—UP—A bona fide error and human inability to foresee is not a crime under law, Dennis Lazarimos, defense lawyer, pleaded today in his concluding argument at the trial of Samuel Insull, American public utilities magnate.

The trial of Insull is to determine whether Greece will honor the United States' extradition papers for Insull's return to America to face trial in Chicago.

BEARS, TROY HELD TO TIE GRID GAMES

More upsets featured football games yesterday on the Pacific Coast.

The biggest upset of the day, of course, was the game between Oregon State and University of Southern California, played in the north. The fighting Oregon, eleven held the Trojans to a scoreless tie and thus upset all predictions.

California and Washington State fought a 6 to 6 tie at Pullman. The Bears failed to release their heralded power drive but did hold the Cougars from scoring winning touchdowns.

Stanford had its goal line crossed for the first time this season, but still maintains its record of being undefeated so far this year, as a result of yesterday's game against University of San Francisco.

In this contest, marred by numerous fumbles, the Cards defeated the luckless Dons 20 to 13.

Another upset was marked when Nevada trounced College of the Pacific by 7 points.

In the game played at Berkeley yesterday the Trojans of U. S. C. defeated Cal Frosh, 7 to 0.

UCLA galloped over the strong Loyola team, 20 to 7 at Los Angeles while Washington University defeated Puget Sound, 14 to 6.

Details of these games will be found on this morning's sport pages.

WHAT are the PURCHASING AGENTS DOING?

EVERY big company has one or more men whose entire time is devoted to buying the things which that company needs.

These men are specialists. It is their business to know prices . . . materials . . . sources of supply . . . present and future trends. They are the shrewdest, canniest buyers in the world.

But ALL of us, in a small way, are purchasing agents. We HAVE to buy a certain number of things, if only to keep alive. And most of us aren't very skillful at it. We waste a lot of money. We miss the good bargains. In fact, we could learn a great deal by watching a professional buyer at his work.

At this time, especially, it may be helpful to know what the big purchasing agents are doing. Are they cutting down? Are they opening up? Do they think this is a good time to buy or a bad time? What do they think about the future?

Well, the answer is that they are all buying as fast as they can buy.

And they are buying because THEY KNOW THAT PRICES ARE GOING UP.

"Pig iron has advanced 13 percent," the purchasing agent of a $20,000,000 corporation recently said. "Brass is up 42½ percent. I am paying 41 percent more for lumber than I did in March, and fiber packing cases have doubled in price. In fact, everything we use in this business is costing us more today, and will in my opinion cost us still more tomorrow. I believe . . . that many commodities will be back to or near 1929 levels by spring."

That's the way the professional purchasing agents feel about it. And they KNOW. They have special sources of information. They are closely in touch with industry. They have studied the workings of the NRA codes.

PRICES ARE GOING UP. And it's a good thing for everyone. For things had come to the point where NOTHING had any true value. A man's time . . . his product . . .

his property . . . all had sunk so low in value that he couldn't even get a decent living.

That couldn't go on. So the Government set up the machinery of the NRA codes in order to MAKE EVERYTHING WORTH SOMETHING AGAIN.

This process is now under way. Wages are being raised. Commodities are bringing better prices every day. But it is not yet over. Before fair values . . . living values . . . can be reached, prices will have to go higher than they are now.

Before they do, take a leaf from the purchasing agent's book, and lay in a supply of the things you need. There are many good bargains still to be had. But these stocks are strictly limited. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.

Upturn Item

Fig-iron production, between August 1932 and August 1933, increased 245 percent.
